In 1973, Roger and Lois Zeedyk paid $435 per acre for the home farm where they live today. All of their land is systematically tiled. They also have all three of their sons involved in agriculture. Roger and Lois take most pride in their family and being good stewards of the land, while raising a good crop. A few lasting memories or experiences that Roger and Lois reflect back on are raising their four children on the farm as they experienced the values of farm life. Now their twelve grandchildren are experiencing the same values of family, hard work, and the many joys of farm life.
